NO INCREASE NOW IN PRICE OF BREAD

Commissioners Will Oppose Bakers' Move by Action in Police Court.

There will be no reduction in the weight of a loaf of bread or increase in the cost if it is within the power of the Commissioners to prevent it. Haskell, Sealer of Weights and Measures, of a letter from Alexander H. Monday a local baker will bake fifteen loaves of bread which will weigh less than a pound each in order to test the law, Commissioner West and Colonel Haskell held a conference concerning the proposed action of the District authorities.

Pursuant to the baker's request, it was decided to institute proceedings against him in the Police Court. Furthermore, the Corporation Counsel was instructed by Commissioner West to make every effort to uphold the law and obtain a conviction. If, said Commissioner West, as is claimed by Mr. Bell, the law is invalid and inoperative, the Commissioners, will, at the coming session of Congress, endeavor to put through legislation compelling the bakers to sell full weight at the present price.

In a letter to the Sealer of Weights and Measures, Attorney Bell says that by reason of the high price of flour, material, and labor, a number of Washington bakers have found it impossible to profitably conduct business. He has, therefore, advised his clients to make a test case. Pursuant to the baker's request, it was A cablegram received from Spencer Eddy, the new American minister to Mrs. Johnston related today her marital woes, and alleged mistreatment by her husband. She was but seventeen years old, she said, when she first met Johnston. Her parents had died when she was quite young, and although she had two brothers who were willing to support her, she worked for her own living. When she was eighteen she her that the Argentine chamber of deputies, by a large majority, has voted a credit of $5,000,000 for armaments.

Mrs. Johnston is now living with riends, and says that but for them she wouldn't know what to do. She is she wouldn't know what to do. She is in a pitiful plight, according to her tearful statements. She hasn't a cent in the world, and no way of getting money. She said that she was even afraid to sell the furniture, because she was afraid her husband and the people she bought it from would cause her trouble. There is still about $20 owing on it, she said. Shelton was brought into court by his wife, who declared to Judge De Lacy that the man had failed to provide for her. He was sentenced to three months and then told to go back and sit down in the office of the cierk of the court, there being no cells near the court room. George went, but he got tired of sitting still, got up, walked past a couple of deputy marshals in the building, kept on going, and now nobody knows where the same had reflected to the powers concerning a Chinese integrity and the open door. A good many far Western people look upon the Democratic declaration as largely ingoism and buncombe, while they point to Secretary Taft's carefully thought and celiberately uttered address at Shanghai as the weighed and measured declaration of a policy for which the Republican party, knowing just what that policy may involve, is prepared to stand.

Interests Are Identical.

In truth, the Oriental situation is co idered in Washington to have restored xcellent international feeling between e United States and Germany, because t has brought them to realize that their nterests in the Far East are largely identical, while at the same time the danger of an early conflict over any eastern situation is looked upon as much less imminent than it was a year or less imminent trunk it.

With the assurances that the American tariff schedules are soon to be revised, and that in this revision there will be opportunities for making concessions to various foreign countries tending to promote better feeling. In fact tariff revision is now looked upon as a cert of first aid to injured diplomatic relationships.

Whichever way the Presidential elecion goes the tariff is to be revised. The evision is regarded as certain to heal many sores. Although reciprocity as a tariff policy has made small progress, tariff policy has made small progress, yet it has deeply impressed upon all schedulch makers the realization that after all tariff bears closely upon general international relations. The disposition constantly increases to use the tariff as a means of cultivating better relations with friends and to impose punishment upon enemies. The United States at this time is seeking friends and has no occasion to punish enemies; therefore the general impression is that the coming revision will afford opportunity for many concessions which will promote better international feelings.
